

Alison Gay

Senior public affairs consultant

Alison's role is to make the unreadable, readable, by examining the outputs of the regulatory and legislative sausage machine, pulling it together, and helping people work out what it all means. With a background in the life and pensions industry and a decade working for the Independent Panels at the FCA, and before it the FSA, she has navigated the regulatory landscape from different angles. In her spare time she also navigates through the landscape on very long runs, and her happy place is crossing a desert with a backpack full of Kendal Mint Cake.
